The purpose of the event was to answer questions that people on Coal River had about industry's plans for the mountains in that area. Hume Davenport, of Southwings, provided free flyovers for anyone wishing to see existing mountaintop removal and reclamation projects from the air.

Teaching Notes:

Miriam, it is exciting to see you pairing LOC primary sources with the documentary film, The Last Mountain. I plan to watch the film soon on Amazon Prime! You may be interested in a Social Studies Methods text book to be published this spring, Hollywood or History? An Inquiry-Based Strategy for Using Film to Teach About Inequality and Inequity Throughout History. David Hicks, one of our TPS ER partners and I have submitted a chapter for that book, The Soul of Baseball: Investigating Race Relations Through Baseball that analyzes primary sources related to the 1996 made for television movie, Soul of the Game. David is the lead author of the SCIM-C historical inquiry method and teaches Social Studies Methods at Virginia Tech.

Notes: - The deeper holes of the Coal River have long supported the ritual of baptism by immersion in living waters. At the Crane Hole in Arnett, the bank slopes gently enough to allow wading into deep water. Here the congregation of the Arnett Chapel gathers behind the Arnett Fire Hall on a chilly April morning for the baptism of Vicky Jarrell. Reverend Larry Brown faces his congregation, singing "Shall We Gather at the River." The hymn may be heard on an audio clip in this collection.
- Event: River baptism of Vicky Jarrell.
