This is a great political cartoon that was used in your lesson, Celeste. I really think it will get some great QFT results for Women's Suffrage which is, unfortunately, mostly glossed over in my subject area of 7th Grade U.S. History. Nice work! Great lesson!

Teaching Notes:

Emily,

In addition to teaching 6th grade World History, I am also teaching 7th grade U.S. History this year so I will plan to use your QFT resources when I cover women's suffrage. I feel both of the photographs you chose as QFoci are interest-grabbing and thought-provoking. I also like how you tweaked the standard process and are asking students to generate questions individually and on paper prior to having them generate questions as a small or whole group. You seem to be using your images as sort of hooks at the beginning of a lesson that ultimately ends with an activity such as a DBQ. I think almost any QFocus is a perfect hook activity although they can be the main event as well. It just struck me how your lesson could also be a great activity to do when we address Women's History Month which I believe is in March.

Teaching Notes:

Hi Heidi, I like the sources that you chose. I go over the caste system in my AP World class so you have given me some good ideas for how to get the discussion going. Thanks!
