ALBUM PRIMARY SOURCES AND PICTURE BOOKS: A LADY HAS THE FLOOR: BELVA LOCKWOOD SPEAKS OUT FOR WOMEN'S RIGHTS BY KATE HANNIGAN

Album Description

Many of the primary sources within this album focus on how the media at the time of Lockwood running for president, wrote about her. Many references to Lockwood were both dismissive and sexist. Helping students towards that understanding through analysis may give them a unique perspective as they view how women today, especially those in positions of power or government positions, are depicted in the media.

THE EASLEY MESSENGER, SEPTEMBER 26, 1884, PAGE 4

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

I is but natural that the country should wish to know more of the latest Presidential candidate, Belva Lockwood, the nominee of the Woman's Rights party. The candidate's life, written by an impartial hand, as the only means for completely supplying this demand, will doubtless appear at an early day. Here in Washington

GENTLEMEN DECLINE.—At last all the candidates have the opportunity for which they have been looking—a chance to withdraw gracefully. Mrs. Belva Lockwood, the Washington lawyeress, has accepted the nomination of the California Woman's Rights Convention and is a candidate. If Cleveland, Blaine, Butler, and St. John will all withdraw, Mrs. Lockwood will have a clear field and can be elected. It would be a gallant

The public is beginning to lose all interest in the fact that Mrs. Lockwood is running for the presidency. It never was an interesting sight to watch a woman run, anyway.—Lowell Citizen.

Many persons of good sense are now predicting that Mrs. Belva Lockwood will have a majority in Pennsylvania at the coming election. The reason for this is that Mrs. L. has promised, if elected, to abolish the female bang.—Norristown Herald.

THE ROCK ISLAND ARGUS, OCTOBER 30, 1884, PAGE 4Belva Boomed.

They had great sport in Davenport last evening. Several fun loving young men over there got up a hoax about Mrs. Belva Lockwood coming to Davenport to address the people on the political issues of the day. A large crowd turned out to see the parade and hear the speech of the feminine politician. Some people even illuminated their houses in honor of the event. About 8 o'clock a procession appeared upon the streets headed by a brass band. It was composed of fifty young men dressed in Mother Hubbards and poke bonnets. The crowd was headed by one who personated Belva. After the parade this same Belva addressed the crowd in an amusing way. Harry C. Fulton, editor the Gazette, was the Belva Lockwood of the occasion. The affair throughout was a highly comical one.

Belva Lockwood Coming to Annapolis.

We cannot vouch for the correctness of the rumor that was afloat this morning, and which was to the effect that a collection of highly spirited ladies of Annapolis were devising ways and means whereby to extend an invitation to Mrs. Belva Lockwood, the woman's rights candidate for President, to visit this city and present her views upon woman's rights. If this be true, we can but say "O Lord, deliver us from the Philistines!" for, if there is to be another female turn out on the public streets as was witnessed on the ever memorable day of our local option election, then, in the words of General Grant, "we have lost all faith in human nature." Better send on, also, for the Salvation Army!
