

ALBUM 25TH INFANTRY BICYCLE CORPS

Album Description

In 1896, the 25th made its first sojourn from Fort Missoula to Yellowstone National Park, tackling roughly 800 miles, including the return journey. A year later, Moss, along with another white officer, assistant surgeon James Kennedy, would travel with their now 20 black compatriots on a 1,900 mile expedition to St. Louis, Missouri.

“The chosen route closely followed the Northern Pacific Railroad from the corps headquarters at Fort Missoula to Billings, Montana,” HistoryNet reported. “From there it paralleled the Burlington Northern Railroad through Wyoming, South Dakota, Nebraska, and Missouri.”

BICYCLE CORPS: AMERICA'S BLACK ARMY ON WHEELS

Teaching Notes:

This program tells the story of the 25th Infantry's bicycle trip from Missoula, Montana, to St. Louis, Missouri in 1897. The African American infantry took the trip to test a theory that the bicycle would replace the horse in transporting men for the army. The program also examines the life of the African American soldier at the turn of the century, in particular First Sergeant Mingo Sanders.

A discussion with Angela da Silva and Anne Milford about this year's Mary Meachum Celebration and the upcoming event "Buffalo Soldiers & Bicycles." The Montana to St. Louis bike ride pays tribute to a 41-day bicycle ride in 1887 when soldiers from the 25th Colored Infantry made that same trip.

Teaching Notes:

What a remarkable compilation of primary source photos and newspapers in this album. This is yet another example of how much primary sources can inform. All new to me. Thank you!

Teaching Notes:

 Neme Alperstein I was still in the military in the early 80's and read an article in the Army Times probably about 1985. There are some books that have been written about the Bicycle Corps.

Great Bicycle Experiment: The Army's Historic Black Bicycle Corps, 1896-97 (Fort Missoula) By Kay Moore. Softcover, 72 pages.

Teaching Notes:

So interesting  Ruth Ferris , thanks so much for compiling it! I've added a link to this fabulous album on both Primary Source Spotlight: Bicycles and African American Resources under groups.

Teaching Notes:

Julie Schaul I am so glad you like it and made some links to share it!
