

ALBUM APPLE CIDER DAY

Album Description

November 18 is Apple Cider Day. Apple cider automatically makes me think of beautiful fall days. Celebrate Apple Cider Day with Primary Sources!....and, hopefully, a glass of apple cider.

IDA! SWEET AS APPLE CIDER

Audio Recording

Teaching Notes:

This could be fun to have playing in the background while students or patrons are sampling apple cider.

Teaching Notes:

Added a link to this fun album on this Primary Source Nexus post - Today in History: Johnny Appleseed.

Teaching Notes:

Not cider but apples - How do you like these Apples - is the Library of Congress latest Flickr album. I came across it from the Picture This Library of Congress Photos & Prints blog post From Apples to Autumn Leaves which has some beautiful fall photos - including Apples!

I'll be sure to have some Apple Cider on November 18. Thanks Soline Holmes ! Will you be serving Apple Cider at your library? That would be a nice treat for students and perhaps could lead to some Apple inquiry. :)

Teaching Notes:

Great resources. Thank you!

Teaching Notes:

I think I MUST serve apple cider (and primary sources) at my library. I love the From Apples to Autumn Leaves blog post. Getting from photos of apples to autumn reminds me of Wikiwars where online players have to get from one Wikipedia article to a completely different article just by following internal links in the article. My brain is now spinning about how we could create a similar game using the TPS/LOC sites....!

Teaching Notes:

Super, can't wait to hear your game ideas  Soline Holmes !
